LOVE IS EVERYWHERE

Open yourself to the first celebration
Open your eyes to the joy and pain
Life is the fruit of your own creation
Every new birth is a soul regained

Drinking my life from a silver fountain
Sweet water running to the cold salt sea
Old man moon on a white-top mountain
Sound of the wind singing dreams for me...

Love is everywhere I see it
You are all that you can be, go on and be it
Life is perfect, I believe it
Come and play the game with me

About “Love is Everywhere”: “Love is Everywhere” was written with Joe Henry, John Sommers, and Steve Weisburg. John Sommers had written a lovely chorus and I wanted to write words to it. I wanted to write a modern bluegrass song. John and I worked out the chorus, then John, Steve, and I spent some time trying to get verses for the song, but we just couldn’t get it the way I wanted it. So, I brought Joe Henry in and he worked some with John and Steve, but again, nothing much came of it. One night, after all the discussion, the talking, the approach and the critique, we were in the studio recording the Windsong album; Joe went home and virtually wrote the verses to the song. It was on my insistence that we shared credit all around because I think the song came out of all those discussions and interchange of ideas.

Well, another JD soul sister has crossed over... my friend Suzanne Spisszak from Allentown, PA. I met her in 1998 at a tree planting for John - the one that began the PA Friends of JD, actually...then I saw her occasionally at the small church concerts in Doylestown, PA put on by Chris Westfall and others... and we were supposed to drive out to Aspen together in 1998 for the very first celebration of John's life, but she had a last minute crisis and couldn't go, which is why I ended up taking the bus. She did make it out there one year, which I'm happy about that. (She stayed at the Snowflake Inn the year the BEAR was there!) She used to get this newsletter but a few years ago her emails started bouncing back to me and I lost touch. I am sorry about that. What happened was she had an aggressive form of lung cancer and didn't go for any x-rays or anything until it was too late. By the time she finally went to the hospital she never came out.

She also saw John in her kitchen one night after he crossed over. She thought it was a dream until the next morning her daughter said that her mom had been in the kitchen the night before and she'd heard her talking to somebody! She said that when John came to Baltimore for the Cystic Fibrosis concert on Sept. 20th, he also flew up to Scranton Airport where she picked him up and they went hiking together. He invited her to come visit him for his birthday that year, but that never happened either. Well, I guess she's getting to talk to him again now. I thought I heard her say to ME, "Go do what you have to do...I'm fine!" because right before that I was thinking how am I ever going to be able to get through the day....

Guess what? I have another analogy.....aren't you thrilled? Well, it's like this: Picture yourself in a jail, holding onto the prison bars, shouting, "Let me out! Let me out!" Suddenly, someone says, "Turn around." When you do, you realize that you are not on the inside looking OUT, you are on the outside looking IN, and all you have to do to realize you are FREE is to TURN YOUR MIND AROUND AND CHANGE YOUR PERSPECTIVE. Simple, yet so powerful. (I know I posted this on Almost Heaven, but I had it here first, actually.)

There was a lot of info sent my way for Heavenly Connections. And some interesting new HEAVENLY CONNECTIONS being made aware of through John (and some other connections that we are aware of are changing) ...very amazing.

"The truth is, folks, love is not where you FIND it - love is where you SEE it."

Windsong by Mary Frances Perkins

There's a whisper of song in the air
when the Autumn breezes blow
When all the birds are quiet and the sun—just an afterglow.

You may not hear its beginning
but soon its presence you'll know
If you quietly stop and listen
when the winds of the Autumn blow.

Connecting Hearts by Valerie Cooper (lyrics)

Now our tree of love grows straight and tall, it towers to the sky
Its roots are its very life force, its branches reach far and wide
And it was planted many years ago by one who dared believe
That we might grow together—this One World Family Tree

He was a man who held a vision, a dream that there might be
A world of love, a world of peace, One World in harmony
And though his leaf has turned to gold now, and has fallen from our tree
His seed was strong, for his dream lives on in the hearts of you and me

For, yes, he connected hearts, one by one...he connected you to me
And he joined together everyone to become a One World Family,
A world of love and peace and harmony....

Yes, he traveled o'er this great big world, and touched the hearts of all
He was a voice for all the wilderness and for every creature great and small
And as he sang his songs of love and of just how the world could be
He planted seeds that grew within the hearts of you and me.

And so the work is up to us now, to carry on his dream
And it's the choices that we make that will create our family
Yes, if we choose to love each other and all that life can bring
Then our seeds of love will grow within the heart of every thing!

So we're connecting hearts, one by one...connecting you and me
And when we've joined together everyone, we'll become a One World Family,
A world of love and peace and harmony...
A One World Family Tree!

From "Hope for the Flowers":

"How does one become a butterfly?" she asked pensively.
"You must want to fly so much that you are willing to give up being a caterpillar."
"You mean to die?" asked Yellow, remembering the three who fell out of the sky.
"Yes and no," he answered. "It looks like you will die but what's real is you will still live. Life is changed, not taken away. Isn't that different from those who die without ever becoming butterflies?"
"And if I decide to become a butterfly," said Yellow hesitantly. "What do I do?"
"Watch me. I'm making a cocoon. It looks like I'm hiding, I know, but a cocoon is no escape. It's an in-between house where the change takes place. It's a big step since you can never return to caterpillar life. During the change, it will seem to you or to anyone who might peek that nothing is happening—but the butterfly is already becoming. It just takes time!
"And there's something else. Once you are a butterfly, you can really love the kind of love that makes new life."

World-renowned medium Robert Brown (<http://robertbrown-medium.com/about/index.php>) mentions John in his new book, We Are Eternal: What The Spirits Tell Me About Life After Death. Not that he has had contact with John, but he says if you really listen to John's music and the words, you can't help but know that he was inspired by something beyond himself. John in Reno, 1996 – From www.john-denver.org by Pam Beasley

It is so hard to believe it has been 10 years since we made that trip to Reno. Every time one of these anniversaries of a concert I attended comes around, I have to pick up my photo albums and look at the photos.

This was one of the few concerts that John did in his final years with his band. The show was at an outdoor theater next to the Reno Hilton. The location was near the airport and occasionally during the show a jet would fly over. (Chris didn't have to create the sound!) During his encore that night he spoke about being honored with induction into the Songwriter's Hall of Fame a few weeks before.

Prior to the concert we "made friends" with a lady on the security staff. After the concert, she arranged for us to get backstage. When John came into the room, he had 7-year-old Jesse Belle with him. He spent a few minutes talking to her before beginning to make the rounds of all the rest of us.

This was the night that I learned John's sleeve length! In the conversation with him it was mentioned that the gift I gave him the previous March in Chicago was a vest instead of a jacket because I didn't know how long to make the sleeves. With that, John held out his arm, looking at it, said, "33".

EDITOR'S NOTE: That seems a little LONG to me, considering my husband's is only 25 and he has the same height, hand, and shoe size as John did!

Shuttle diplomacy by Stephen Pincock - stephen.pincock@journalist.co.uk

I went for a stroll the other day with my iPod set to shuffle. The first track that came on was one I haven't heard in ages, one of my dad's old favorites - John Denver's 1970s hit, "Rocky Mountain High". Goodness knows how something so nostalgic made its way into my collection of bleeding-edge rock and pop. I'm certainly not admitting to having bought it online.

Anyway, as I listened to him sing about watching it "raining fire in the sky", I was reminded of what a space buff Denver was. Not only did he take and pass Nasa's examination to determine mental and physical fitness for space travel, he also asked the Soviet authorities to allow him to be launched into space.

Denver died in 1997 while piloting his light aircraft over the California coast, so his dream never came to fruition. But it seems fairly certain that more and more ordinary people are going to get that opportunity in years to come.

Whether or not the experience will live up to the romance of the idea remains to be seen. Certainly a lecture delivered at University College London this month made me wonder. The talk was given by Professor Jim Kass, of the European Space Agency, and its tenor was clear from the title: "In space everybody can hear you scream."

Kass pointed out the enormous pressures faced by astronauts, who have to find ways of living and working in close quarters for long periods with no escape from their crewmates. Anyone who has been on a camping holiday in the rain will have a sense of what that must be like.

Astronauts are also separated from family and friends, and have to cope with restricted sensory stimulation and sleep disturbances, all which can have further negative impacts on their emotional state. The results of this can be worrying, Kass told me on the phone after his talk. "I've heard of crew members hitting each other, and trying to escape from the hatch," he said. "There have also been crew members brought back early. The trouble is that one tends not to know too much about what has happened, because it isn't discussed."

Given all this, it isn't surprising that space agencies have started to take the psychological testing of astronauts seriously. But less attention is given to the way the individual men and women will work together, Kass says. "The crew compatibility issues are very important - but very little is done in the way of compatibility," he says. "With all the other considerations, you rarely have the luxury of putting a crew together so they get along."

In an ideal world, astronauts would be given some psychological training to help their social skills and stress management, he says. "You could make each of them into group psychologists, to help them learn to cope with each other and work together as a team."

The fact that this isn't done surely causes problems now, he says, and most definitely will on any future trips to Mars - which could take nearly a year. "You can grit your teeth for a few months, but not for the length of a Mars mission."

Still, astronaut psychology is getting more attention than it has in the past. For a long time, Nasa in particular didn't give a damn about the state of mind of their crews - more important were their piloting and research skills. "It was really when the first joint Russian-American missions to the Mir space station began that they realized there were problems," Kass said.

These days, psychologists listen in on most of the communications astronauts have with those on the ground in order to detect worrying signs such as depression or frustration, Kass says. Even a confidential call to mission control could have a few listeners.

One man who has probably thought quite a lot about these issues is Thomas Reiter, a German astronaut who is due to begin a six-month stint on the International Space Station (ISS). Reiter will be taken to the ISS on the next Space Shuttle mission, which could be blasting off as soon as next month. He will be the first non-American or Russian astronaut to become a member of an ISS expedition crew, and will work alongside two crew mates.

Reiter is married, with two sons. He apparently enjoys fencing, badminton, cooking and playing the guitar, none of which he'll be able to do for some time. At least he knows what he's letting himself in for, since he has already had experience of a long stint in space. In 1995, he was part of a record-breaking 179-day mission to the old Mir space station, with two Russian colleagues.

That experience was a good one, Reiter said in a recent interview: "I have to honestly say that I expected some ups and downs from time to time as happens in the best marriages... but I must say that absolutely nothing has happened."

No doubt his crew-mates on the ISS will be glad to hear they've got such a philosophical chap on board with them. How they would react if he turns out to be a John Denver fan is anyone's guess.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer, March 27, 1986:

Singer John Denver has penned a song in memory of the seven Challenger victims and says he hopes to perform it at a special benefit for their children. Denver says the song, called "Flying for Me," may make its debut at the sold-out benefit concert tonight in Houston. The final decision must be made by the sponsors of the benefit, he said. Sponsored by a variety of performing groups including the Houston Symphony Orchestra and the Houston Grand Opera, the benefit is for the children of the seven astronauts who died when the space shuttle exploded shortly after takeoff January 28th.

And from USA Today, March 28th, 1986:

WASHINGTON – John Denver got a standing ovation from senators Wednesday when he played a tape of his new song, “Flying for Me,” before the Senate space oversight subcommittee. The space fan started composing it the night of the Challenger disaster. The singer is in Houston for a concert today benefiting families of the Challenger crew. Denver, who says he “would go tomorrow” on a shuttle if asked, has big plans if his wish ever comes true. “I’ve had lengthy discussion with the people who put on Live Aid. We’re talking about a 1 ½ hour show I would host from space—we’d have people from all over the world perform.”

IN JOHN’S WORDS

JOHN DENVER was on America Online's CENTER STAGE on 8/2/95 This is the text of the question and answer session.

Question: What can I do, as only one person to help the environment?

JohnDLive: I suppose that's a question most often asked me by people who would like to make a positive contribution towards a sustainable future and a healthy environment. There are so many things that need to be done that sometimes it seems overwhelming. I try to remind everyone that no one person has to do it all, but if each one of us follows our heart and our own inclinations we will find the small things that we can do and together we will come up with enough to create a sustainable future and a healthy environment.

Question: John, of all the environmental programs you work with and belong to, is there any one in particular that means the most to you?

JohnDLive: No, I think all of them are an opportunity for people out of their own interest and their own inclinations to make a contribution to a better world, better quality of life for all living things. I think it's so important that we always remember that nature, environment, wild places and wild things are a big part of what makes us who and what we are as human beings. To deny this is to deny our own heritage, our own spirit, and our own souls. We must learn to live in a sustainable fashion in a way that promotes the incredible diversity of life in this world rather than decreasing it mindlessly. We must not allow people to destroy those things which are so precious and cannot be replaced.

From PEOPLE Magazine, February 26, 1979 - "John Denver - The Unsung Story"

"At times I've got a really big ego" John goes on, a bit misty-eyed. "But I'll tell you the best thing about me. I'm some guy's dad; I'm some little gal's dad. When I die, if they say I was Annie's husband and Zachary John and Anna Kate's father, boy, that's enough for me to be remembered by," says John Denver. "That's more than enough."

You can read the entire article at <http://www.shellworld.net/~emily/articles/PEOPLE.79>

On the tales of that, I found this, which seems very appropriate for John. From “What is a Father?”:

“A father never feels entirely worthy of the worship in a child's eyes. He is never quite the hero his daughter thinks . . . Never quite the man his son believes him to be. And this worries him sometimes. (So he works too hard to try to smooth the rough places in the road of those of his own who will follow him.)

I don't know where father goes when he dies, but I've an idea that, after a good rest, wherever it is, he won't just sit on a cloud and wait for the girl he's loved and the children she bore. He'll be busy there too . . . repairing the stars, oiling the gates, improving the streets, smoothing the way.”

MY SPIRIT STILL SINGS!

June, 2006 – from Alice

My husband and I watched a TV special on John called A Song's Best Friend. During several segments I heard him talking in my head encouraging me. I also felt him hold my hand at one point and then jointly encouraged the three of us to hold hands together which I did with my husband joining in. John also directed me to listen to specific lyrics to one of his songs at one point. I do not remember the exact words except that it had to do with hearing God's message to each of us of Love. I am very grateful to be clairaudient, clairsentient and clairvoyant to hear, sense and get visual impressions of his guiding presence as friend. I hope others as well sense that for themselves along with their own inner Teacher of God's Presence in them. John Denver was and still is a student of A Course in Miracles. I realize now that he has been helping me to guide others to study with him to self-discover the inner Teacher that comes with the Course. He said to me that he is one of many helping other's to discover their inner Teacher with the help of the Course's inner co-creative Author in spirit.

Yesterday I stopped off at the library and was glancing through a book on ADC (after-death communication), and saw the author suggested to say to the person you wish to contact as you are drifting off to sleep, "I am ready to meet you now..." or something to that effect. Later last night John and I were chatting and I just had to stop and tell myself I just didn't believe this could possibly be REAL, because physically I was ALONE. I said to him, "Ya know, if I could just see you ONE TIME, just ONCE... then I would be totally convinced without a doubt that you are really around. Can't you let me see you just ONCE?"

He just chuckled and touched my arm, saying, "You will...when the time is right, you will."

Now, one out of every three nights I end up turning off the light to go to sleep at 12:31. I don't plan it that way, it just happens. Last night was no different, and when I did I said to John (even though he was already around), "I am ready to meet you now," as the book at the library suggested. Well, he was instantly right there, and I even felt a bodily presence (for lack of a better term). After a few minutes (of "downloading"?), he gave me this energy healing exercise to use on my clients. It involves Reiki and the song "Perhaps Love."

He said, "The images in your mind are what make up your physical (3-D) reality. Thought precedes action. Give [your client] Reiki to the song 'Perhaps Love' in order to channel the energy of Divine Love. Ask them to envision the most beautiful, joy-filled time of their life, or what they desire that to be. At the same time, be making a bottle of 'HADO' water (set close to the speakers so the water can pick up the vibration of the music) to give to [the client] afterwards to take home, as it will help to keep the images strong in their mind. [The client] and you can both record afterwards what your experiences were during the session. The entire exercise should take no more than 20 minutes, and you could charge $12 per person which would include the water and... (specify as a FREE special bonus)... a tape of the song."

Of course I had to turn the light back on to write all this down, and when I finished and went to turn the light off again, it was 12:43. The next time I woke up it was 3:55 a.m. I just shook my head in amazement because I also felt his presence very strongly, letting me know that he was definitely still around. It truly is a sacred bond that we have and I cherish and treasure it with all my being. I don't have to SEE anything to gauge the truth of that.

EARTH RHYTHMS

SO VERY IMPORTANT and supported by John 100%!)

From the June 3, 2006 Crimson Circle Shoud/Tobias, with the 'guest energy' of AA Metatron:

Now some of you are worried that "How is Gaia going to handle all this?" Well, Gaia will handle it quite well - it's more of a question of how humans will handle it! Gaia has all the capabilities to renew herself, but she doesn't want to do it when it costs the life of thousands or millions of humans. So Gaia is calling out right now for humanity to come to a new point of consciousness, even a new type of ecology consciousness that's different than what's there right now. A new type of "Green"... and let's not even call it Green - let's call it Golden... a new type of understanding about Gaia's abilities to rejuvenate herself. Humanity needs teachers and stewards of a new ecology of Earth.

Now there are many groups right now who have done wonderful work, who are devoted, dedicated towards the preservation of the ecosystems on Earth, but even they lack an understanding of what's going on. They don't understand New Energy. They've gotten caught in as much drama as the very forces they oppose. They have taken on an energy of being do-gooders rather than an energy of working from a higher level, a higher perspective of balancers. There are very, very few Earth balancers right now.

For humanity to go forward into these next years of time, someone has to come forward. Somebody has to teach. Somebody has to take a few risks, get on television, write some articles from a new perspective of Earth ecology. Or what will happen on Earth is that the ability to produce food will begin to dry out. The weather patterns will change and affect those areas that produce the food for Earth. And on top of that, the Earth will start running out of its current fuel source. You combine those things together, Shaumbra, you have a very chaotic Earth. Very chaotic. When people aren't being fed and people don't have the energy for the transportation, for the operation of humanity on Earth, it sets up a very chaotic environment.

So those of you who are going to be teachers and stewards of the new ecology are really going to be preventing wars. You're going to be keeping governments from fighting with each other. You're going to be helping to prevent some type of mass catastrophe on Earth from human to human. Earth – Gaia – will survive definitely, but what about humanity? Can they take what's coming along in these next few years?

Humanity needs teachers and stewards of business. Of business. Business is the way that energy flows. It is a transaction of energy. In this recent era on Earth, businesses have surpassed governments for – how do you say – energy flow, energy control, energy movement. That's not a judgmental statement, but businesses are stronger than governments right now.

Businesses flow energy. That's all they do. Yes, sometimes they get corrupt and greedy about it because they don't understand how energy truly works. So many of them are focused on a bottom line only. That is part of greed and fear. What if there were companies that started to focus on, instead of a bottom line, a heart line... a balance of energy movement; a balance of the human consciousness that's involved in the company, through the employees; a balance of energy consciousness, even from its customers. Where everything wasn't just about the bottom line, where it's about the heart line.

There is a need for those who are teachers and stewards of business right now in the world, because business is going to change in these next few years. Oh yes, it has changed incredibly in the past twenty years. You have global companies now. You have very efficient distribution systems. You have ways of moving energy and money instantly across the internet. It's going to change, but right now there are no prototypes. There are no incubators for New Energy businesses.

The world right now needs those teachers and stewards and we are coming to Shaumbra to talk to you about it. Who's going to create the new business model? Who's going to show that businesses don't have to steal from other businesses? The greatest fallacy in any business, the greatest overlay and belief system is the belief in competition. Competition is just a modern word for war. Companies fight. Companies set up their employees and train their employees about how to overcome, how to beat the competition. Who's going to write that book that says there is no competition out there. There's no need to battle. There's no need to destroy other companies. It is very Old Energy.

Perhaps... perhaps one of the first places to start – this New Energy business template – is right with the Crimson Circle, showing how it can be done. And very efficiently... one of my own observations as a former business person is that a tremendous amount of very inefficient energy is spent in businesses trying to control, trying to get money, trying to make a profit. Businesses, by their very nature right now, are extremely inefficient because of the vast amount of energy that's spent protecting and defending rather than flowing. And we would be happy to do discussions just about a New Energy business – a heart line business.

The world right now needs teachers and stewards of the arts. Of the arts. Humanity has gone so mental and so intellectual that the arts have been lost, but the arts are a partner of the sciences, much as the male is a partner of the female. You can't have one without the other, they balance each other. So as much as there is science, as much as there is the intellect in society and in your schools, there needs to be the arts. It's a flow of creativity, the flow of energy and more than anything else, the arts are one of the most beautiful and efficient ways to bring in New Energy.

Those of you who are painters and musicians and dancers, you're not wasting your time as you've been told by so many others. You've been moving energy. You've been sharing energy and now the call goes out for the teachers and the stewards of the arts to help bring back a balance, to help bring in New Energy. It has been lost in these recent years. It has been taken out of school curriculums because there wasn't enough time for it, because of this competition for the mind, because of your scoring systems. How can you score art? How can you grade it? It just is. It doesn't have a value that you can assign to it. Yes, some of you can put a judgment on it, but you can't measure it. It is time to bring back art and music and dancing and writing and creative expression back into society - but in a new way. Even the paintings will look different. Music will sound different.

The Earth right now needs the stewards and the teachers of the arts. We would like to see that start with Shaumbra and with the Crimson Circle. It is important for the overall balance on Earth right now. Many of you will be teaching this as well.

Right now there is a desperate need on Earth, if humanity is going to go forward, there is a desperate need for the teachers and the stewards of education. The school systems are trapped. They are locked into a cycle of their own. They are not growing. As a matter of fact, energetically, they are collapsing. They are not producing what they try to produce, which is educated, informed and enlightened students.

Right now your educational systems have been infected by a virus, an energy virus. It is prevalent in all of the schools, particularly the public schools, but it has even crept into the private schools. And right now this energy virus is doing more to corrupt and distort and distract the students. It is creating violence. It is creating a dependency and an addiction. Very little education is getting done. It is a serious situation, Shaumbra.

The world right now needs the teachers and the stewards of the new education. A new type of system that doesn't allow energy imbalances, that will not tolerate the abuse of energy - or any other human. A school system that's not designed or based on scoring or grading or point systems or trying to conform with some archaic type of state educational system, but a group that will break out and truly bring out the very best.

There are millions of what you would call "Crystals" that are ready to come in but they will not come in until the time and the resources are right. These are Beings who have never incarnated onto Earth before. They are waiting. They are waiting. They will not come in until the new schools are ready, because they will not put their energy into one of the infected educational systems.

So Shaumbra the world needs you. You felt it within you. You felt the call before and now we're going to do something about it. Humanity, the world, is calling... calling out for those who are teachers and stewards of technology.

Technology is one of the greatest tools you have now in humanity. Technology is a tool. It is not a god, you see. The mentals... those people who are just in the mind... the mentals have turned technology into a god, into a weapon, and they are going to turn it into a war quite soon. Technology is a tool that can enhance the human experience on Earth; that can make life more efficient and easier; that can open up communication channels instantly; that can connect humans to each other instantly so that governments or businesses can't deceive or fool. Technology has the ability to be a tool of authenticity because with technology it is very difficult for people to hide things.

Technology right now has blossomed in incredible ways but it is also very prone to abuses right now. There need to be those, rising up from the ranks of Shaumbra, who will become the teachers and the stewards of technology. Not talking about 0's and 1's, not talking about the intellectual or the mental portion of technology, but talking about technology as a tool, technology as a spiritual principle, technology as a life enhancement. And when these certain Shaumbra step forward they are going to draw to them a type of energy, that is based in technology, that will create some very interesting and profound new discoveries in this whole world of technology. So the teachers, the stewards of these energies, are needed on Earth right now.

The Earth needs teachers and stewards of the healing arts. Of the healing arts. Medicine, and your modern type of medicine, does a wonderful job - up to a point. Even what you call your alternative healing modalities do a wonderful job - up to a point. But then why aren't more people healed? Why are so many people sick? Why hasn't there been developed a cure for cancer and AIDS? Why is it that medicine, whether traditional or alternative, falls short? It is because they don't understand some of the core issues; because they are so regulated; because there's such a fear of things like lawsuits; because there's so many viruses within the medical profession itself... and we're not talking about a cold and flu virus, we're talking about an energy virus... that's also within this system.

So we're calling forth for the stewards and the teachers of the new healing arts, and it may not have a mass application at first. We know there are many who would love to develop an overall cure for AIDS. We're going to do it one by one by one. There is not a pill right now - it cannot come into consciousness - that will cure AIDS or cancer. But what we can do is go to some of the root energy causes within the spirit and within the body. We can take a look at the imbalances, we can take a look at what is happening even at a level deeper than the DNA, and we can start curing - one at a time. That's what it will take.

But when we start... when you, Shaumbra, the stewards and the teachers of the healing arts, start curing one at a time, through some very deep and intensive type of work, that changes consciousness, that changes potentials in the future and will ultimately potentially lead to the development of the cure for cancer or AIDS. But it has to start one at a time. It has to start somewhere.

The human body shouldn't get sick. The human body should get to a point where it just dies and preferably by the choice of the spirit within it. But right now the human body is in a very fragile state. It shouldn't be getting as sick or as tired as it is, but it is running on Old Energy and it has many old imbalances. So through the Crimson Circle and through Shaumbra, we're going to call forth those who are the teachers and the stewards of the new healing arts. Yes, it will get many upset. Many in the medical industry and many, many more in the alternative industry because we're going to blow the doors off of what they have thought is true.

Shaumbra, we also are putting out the call, humanity needs the stewards and the teachers of divinity. The churches are old, they're falling apart. They no longer have the energy and the love that they did a long, long time ago. As you know, the energies have been distorted, twisted and abused, and if there is a karma, churches carry it. If there is a penance that - how to say - and a suffering that has to be paid, it is theirs.

The churches are going through a tremendous evolution right now. They are desperately seeking new ways to attract people. But they're just looking for numbers. They're just looking for donors. They're just looking for - how to say - to build their own notoriety and fame. It is shameful for a pastor who only has a dozen or so sitting in the pews on any given Sunday, so they try to recruit, but where's the heart in that? Where is the true teaching and the true love? Why can't churches answer the questions about God? Why have all these stories and fables been made up about Jesus and Buddha, Moses and Abraham and Muhammad and so many of the others? Why is it that there is so much fear and so many wars around the whole issue of church and religion?

Those who pray, those who call out to us on the other side want answers about God. They want real, authentic answers, they don't want some type of fluff, some filler. They want to know, and there are very few organizations on Earth right now who could supply them with the true, authentic answer. When we say "authentic" we mean it is without agenda, without trying to build membership, without trying to get them to buy into some belief system.

Shaumbra, we're calling out for the teacher and the stewards of divinity to help answer the question about God – about talk about the big "G" authentic God – you. This is going to be one of the most challenging of all these different areas for the Shaumbra teachers because it will meet the most resistance. It will bring up the most anger and fear within people. But again, one by one, for those who are ready, for those who are asking, one by one, we talk about the very simple concept: You are God also. When are you going to realize it? When are you going to integrate humanity, spirituality, your Godself, all into one, right here on Earth, right now?

The world is looking for teachers and stewards of energy. You have been going through some seven years of experience. You were going through an experience to see what it was like getting to your ascension, getting to your divinity.

It is time that we all stop playing the game of hide and seek. We all stop pretending that we're not divine and God. It's time we got off of the old concept of what God is. It is time for me to remind you of how we sat at the cottage and discussed this very thing. It's like déjà vu, isn't it? Like déjà vu all over again.

From henceforth, Shaumbra... and I'm repeating here the words of Metatron... if you want to continue processing, if you want to continue – how to say – believing that you need all sorts of healing, if you want to continue with these old ways, this is not the right organization for you. There are others who will cater to your feeding – I mean your needs. (laughter)

From henceforth we are going to move forward. You are going to be a teacher if you stay with this group. Now we don't want to – how to say – be trapped in the old definition of teacher, because it has very different connotations in the New Energy. But your work is going to be shifting, your job, everything is going to be shifting. You're going to have all the resources and the tools coming in for you so stop worrying about it. Stop trying to set up your tools or your – how to say – your energy resources in advance. They are going to occur in the moment - in the moment - and they are going to be all yours and no one can take it away.

But so many of you say "I will make the move when I am guaranteed that the pot of gold will be there." The pot of gold will be there if you go out to do the work. All the resources - you set it up. We're helping to bring it in. You can't play the role of victim anymore in this work. You can't pretend that you're broke. You can't pretend that you're broken down. There's no room for it in this work. Cauldre is – how to say – in a bit of anxiety here for our directness, but in order to do what all of you, all of us, have planned to do to help answer these S.O.S. calls from humans all over the world, we have to move forward.

We're going to be changing – how to say – the very way we work together. We're going to be changing even the format and the energy of these Shouds. But it is time. You are ready for it. You are ready. Shaumbra, Metatron says you are authentic and you are ready and now is the time. And so it is.

Mayan/Aztec Astrology and Galactic Consciousness by Rev. Randy Hastings – hastingsrandy@hotmail.com

For over 5,000 years the highly spiritual civilizations of Central America known as the Maya and the Aztec/ Toltec have practiced a form of practical astrology that helps human beings understand our relationship to the Sun, Moon, Planets and Stars. But this form of astrology is also a spiritual science that has anticipated many recent discoveries in astrophysics about the nature of the Universe and our place in it.

For instance, the Mayan shamans have known of the existence of a huge black hole (collapsed star) in the center of our Milky Way Galaxy—that was not discovered by Western scientists until the last five years.

At the center of Mayan/Aztec Astrology is the Sacred Calendar. The Mayan culture believes that Divine energy emanates from higher dimensional levels into our physical universe through the center of our Milky Way Galaxy. They also know that this vortex of galactic energies is a portal into a spiritual realm where our own Higher Selves exist.

Mayan prophecy predicts that we will begin to remember and more fully embody our Higher Self energies starting on December 21st, 2012, which is the ending of a long 26,000-year cycle or world age. The Mayan culture also says that the third eye and crown chakras of every person on the Mother Earth in 2012/2013 will become fully energized and awakened. This will allow us to finally understand our true place in the Universe.

This system is still in use today and is a very profound tool for realizing the external and internal changes occurring to us and to the Mother Earth at this time.

The Messages From The Light TV SITE: <http://www.messagesfromthelighttv.com/>

Since 1999, Natalie has been the Official Star 104 Medium and Psychic, heard the first Thursday of the month, with Warvel and Curry "In the Morning" at 8 am. Formerly with "Spirit Speaks", Natalie decided that she wanted to produce and direct her own show and its format.

This is where "Messages from the Light" was conceived. Being a near death experiencer herself, she thought of all the messages she had received while in the light during her own NDE (near death experience), thus the reasoning behind the name for her NEW SHOW "Messages from the Light."

Message from Natalie:

"Love is always found within the Light and in each and everyone one of us, in our hearts, souls and minds. It is with that love and Light in all of us that seeks the "Messages from the Light." ©

Ask the Medium – from "Signs of Life" newsletter, a publication of the Forever Family Foundation

I have heard that at times the departed will make their presence known by "fooling" with the lights. I think my father did that on the day of his funeral. The lights went off at the funeral home and then again at my sister's house at dinner. Coincidence or wishful thinking?

JT

Dear JT,

I love your question and I want to thank you for asking it. First, let me say that I do believe that our loved ones can (to use your term) "fool" with anything that has a flow of energy, i.e. lights, radio, camera, songs, car batteries, [our BODIES], etc. Yes, that even means water! Anything that has a flow of current of ENERGY can be used by the other side to send a sign.

Why? Well, when we cross over our spirit remains as a vibrational energy. Our spirit has a flow of energy. So if they wanted to get your attention, that would be the easiest way for them to reach you.

Now comes the question, "Is it coincidence or wishful thinking?"

Some wish to blow off such events because of the simple explanation that a light can go off because its current is weak and has nothing to do with the other side. Sometimes that is the case. Lights can go bad and flicker but there is something else must be present to make it a sign; and that is our personal connection to that person and a reason why they want to say hi. That is why validation is so important during a reading. That is why validation for you should be important when asking the question, "Coincidence or wishful thinking?"

So when you get a possible sign, think of doing the following:

1. First, thank them for the fact that they may be trying to reach you. It takes an incredible amount of energy to send a sign.
2. Ask yourself, "Why would they want to reach me on this date? Is it significant to them or personal to me in any way?"
3. Consider asking for another sign to back it up.
4. After you receive a possible sign, write it down and see if there is a true personal connection to you. See if there is a running theme with how the signs connect with you.

I believe that your dad was ringing through loud and clear to you. He wanted to let you know that he was still with you. This is very important. I am not suggesting that every time a light goes off it's a sign. The personal connection is what MAKES it a sign! Your dad's amazing energy was present and he wanted to let you know he was there in a way that was personal to you.

What bonds us to those on the other side is the Love that remains. It is that love and that personal connection they will use to reach us. You can reach your loved ones better than any professional medium can! I feel when we get a sign, we are all Mediums at that point because we are picking up the vibrational energy of our loved ones.

I do wish you all the good fortune and success in continuing that Love Bond and relationship with your father. They are so amazing in their ability to want to reach us.

The best to you always,
Angelina Diana

Do We Have Free Will...Or Are All Things Preordained? – By Shirley Kaehr, Ph.D.

There is a very ancient form of divination called Naadi Leaves.
Several thousand years ago, scribes wrote predictions for the future for certain souls and recorded them on bamboo leaves. These writings have been passed down from generation to generation for thousands of years and are to be discovered by certain people at preordained moments in time. The writings record the soul history and tell everything the soul has and will do, including time of birth/death, exact names of parents, etc.

When you arrive they do not ask your name or anything else about you. They simply take your thumbprint, go to a room where the documents are kept and search for yours.

Amazingly, my exact record was quickly located along with another friend whom I took with me. I was stunned by the very personal details about me. It makes me rethink many of my philosophical contemplations about the nature of destiny and the soul. Are all things actually preordained and destined to happen or is there free will?

As I struggle to come to terms with this shift in paradigm between total control of destiny verses the preordination of our souls' paths and contracts, I am totally blown away.

So what do you think about destiny? Do we have free will or are all things preordained?

2006-07-01 - NOW: The Time to Heal - through Sam Arambatzis

Dear One,

What you need to know right now is that all people on Planet Earth are loved, despite what they may feel or experience in the times ahead and in spite of any hardships encountered. The time for change is now and it has been delayed for far too long in the Earth realm. Those Lightworkers sent to the planet to assist in what should have been the great awakening in the 70's, during the period of mass galactic reincarnation, failed to fulfill their ultimate purpose and so the work to elevate the consciousness of the planet has been left to a small handful of people.

Many became entrapped in the illusion and perceived reality of the matrix that magnifies and intensifies the experience of Earth, buying into and further 'solidifying' the reality of the illusory third dimension. Those, like yourself, who have surprisingly stepped up to bat... - who would have thought? Least of all yourself ... have actually made a difference and ARE making a difference.

Everyday that passes strengthens and further reinforces what the Spiritual Hierarchy have been saying through those that have sought to be a channel for the energy of Spirit. What people need to realize is that the present world events and information from the Higher Dimensions are neither a punishment nor reprimand for the work that has not been completed, but a given state of Planetary experience that must be undertaken for the evolution of Gaia consciousness and for Planet Earth to evolve back to the state of 5D from whence it came.

Soul was never meant to be in a 3D state. The lessons that soul came to Planet Earth to learn were in most cases compromised as Beings bought into the illusion, either turning away from their soul contract or becoming trapped in the karmic cycle of reincarnation and feeding the darkness already existent. For Soul, 3D Planet Earth is truly unique and unlike ANY of the higher dimensions. Incarnated souls here create and form strong connections and attachments to the physicality of this plane that in turn create a template of reality (matrix moulds).

This transient and flexible reality (though it may not seem) is amplified and further solidified every time one accepts a given paradigm as reality. Poverty, famine, hardship and competition exist because YOU choose it to be so. Each of you have accepted it as a given that there will be the rich, the poor and the hungry in the world whilst you compete and struggle for resources in an economic framework of scarcity.

In truth, there is no scarcity in Creation, as there is no death for soul. Life, Soul and Creation will continue to evolve and grow no matter what circumstances they encounter henceforth. The greatest strength and benefit of being in human form is the ability to mould the reality of existence with your minds and to manifest that mould into reality (existence) with your emotions and actions.

It is time to put aside the ways of old as they have brought Creation to a standstill and threatened its very existence, whilst at the same time brought Earth to the brink of disasters where the conditioning of limitation and death in movies may be only a small glimpse of what is to come. Choose to see the Universes as beautiful and bountiful loved ones, a universe that like Earth (Gaia) loves and nurtures you, one that brought you into existence through the Creator's infinite and unconditional love for each of you.

YOU can heal yourselves, the planet and others around you. Together you can achieve more than any of you could alone, yet one man can and has made a difference. NOW is the time.

You are ALL Grandly Loved,
Aristenna from the Spiritual Hierarchy's Council of Light

The "Fire the Grid" story - <http://www.firethegrid.com/> (Visit the website for "the rest of the story.")

We are now in a time when natural disasters like hurricanes, earthquakes, and tidal waves are dramatically affecting our planet, and our lives on it. We now have the power to destroy this beautiful Earth quickly, with atomic power, or more slowly, with pollution and devastation of our resources, and overpopulation. I have been guided to tell you that we also have the very real power to save this planet, and to make it a loving and healthy place for ourselves and for future generations. Please take a few minutes to read my story. It will hopefully save our Earth.

I have a story to tell you that I know will be hard to believe in parts, but it has happened to me, and I cannot erase or deny any of it (though at times I wish I could). I am a "normal" woman who grew up in simple yet chaotic times. I am much like you in most every way. I always thought I would be the last one to have a miracle occur in her life, much less two miracles, and all that has happened since. Therefore the tale I tell could be of your life, and not mine. But seeing it is mine I guess I was meant to tell it.

What I want to establish first, is the fact that miracles do happen and they happen to people like you and me. What we need to make these miracles happen is to open ourselves to the communication that is all around us every day. Communication not from this world but from the world of our creator, the cosmos and the universe. The message comes from a distance, but you find it by going inside and believing. We can all create miracles within our lives, and that is one of the main points in writing this for you. I have no special tricks. Simply open yourself to the possibility that what I tell you is possible and that it is available to every person.

I will refer to God in many ways throughout this story. This is strange for me to refer to God in any sense, as I believed he had abandoned me a very long time ago. But I will refer to a prime creator of the cosmos and the universe, along with this earth that we live on every day. I call God the Prime Creator, because I want all those to understand that this story is completely unbiased and unprejudiced to any affiliation with any religion, and the God of my understanding is not only an earthly God, but a universal God. I will also refer to God as mother earth, Gaia, which I came to learn through this journey is the female piece of God. As in everything that is in our universe, you must balance darkness with light, peace with war, and recognize the two faces of God, the female and the male. We are all pieces of this Prime Creator. We are a part of God.

Two miracles happened in Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada. My son and I drowned in a flooded marsh and not only lived to tell the tale, but we are better than ever. I was "dead" for fifteen minutes. I was told by beings of light how to save myself, and my small son. And I was given a message on how to heal the Earth.

As you are reading this I ask you with all my heart to open yourself to the possibility of what I say. I feel it is imperative that we unite this world as one planet with one common goal - to establish peace and prosperity for all, not just the select few who were blessed to be in the right place at the right time. We are entering a new phase of humanity and what I will tell you in this website will help us as a race to assimilate the changes that the future will bring.

I have not had God in my life for forty years. I did however, as a child, chase the possibility of God. I felt that those people who had undying faith were the lucky ones, and the fact that I believed in nothing made me the loser. As a child I often spoke to God, but never felt heard or connected. It took life throwing me into a flooded marsh and drowning me, to open my eyes to the reality of how much we are all connected to the Divine power. It is showing up now more than ever. You can go on the internet and find thousands of hits about the next phase of humanity, the era of enlightenment and the time of change. These stories are in our religions and in the stories of the ancient cultures such as the Mayans, the Egyptians and the Native Americans. We have all been waiting for the moment when things would be different, for surely God will do something to save us from ourselves. Well there is something in the works, but God is merely directing it through people like me, and it will take the faith of people like you to create the reality. Once again I am getting ahead of myself but in the messages I am receiving, I am being given a way for us all to participate in a healing of mother earth, and a launching of the human race into a time of health, peace and positive change. But for this to happen, you will need to sit in meditation for just one hour of your life.

I once heard in the star trek series "resistance is futile." I did not want to be a messenger for God, but when God wishes our awakening, it will happen. So now I will tell you the truth of what happened to me, after a car accident that occurred in Nov. 2002.

My son and I were traveling to a friend's house for an afternoon of play, when disaster hit. My car was swept into a flooded marsh after hydroplaning. The car landed upside down in this boggy marsh, and sank to the bottom. I tried to open the car's windows, but the power windows failed and we were trapped inside. I spoke with my tiny son who was four at the time, and assured him that mommy would get him out. The car was filling up quickly with the cold murky water and I held my son's coat tightly in my hand, while I waited to be fully submerged. I hoped that I could open the door after the car equalized with water and we would swim out. My final words to my little boy as the water came over his head was "hold your breath honey; mommy will have us out soon". I watched him take a large gulp of the remaining air, and the water took him. When I felt the last air pocket escape the car I tried the door. It wouldn't budge! The other door was equally stuck. I struggled with the doors several times, to no avail. We were trapped and going to die.

At this point I took Evan's little body and pushed it over the seat, hoping beyond hope that he would find air. As I struggled to free us from this coffin on wheels, I realized I had to breathe. As I drank the deep breath of water into my lungs, the fiery feeling added panic to the moment. I wanted my baby back and I swung my arms feverously about in an effort to find his body. I couldn't, and I needed to breathe again. That is when I heard a voice, a calm majestic voice, directing me to relax. This voice cooed in my ear, reassuring me that all would be well. I was infused with the knowledge that if I fought the water, my rescuers would not be able to revive me when they arrived. The voice said that if I fought the water I would drown...no shit I thought, I get a wise ass ghost on my deathbed. The voice continued to give me instructions about what was to happen, and that all would be well if I just followed the instructions. I relinquished myself to this voice from beyond, and passed quietly into the other side.

While on the other side I saw beings of light, who once again assured me that my son and I would not only get out of this car, but we would both be fine. They were definite in explaining that I must follow instructions implicitly and not lose faith in their words. I was told to have faith that I would be divinely directed, and I was.

It took my rescuers fifteen minutes to pull my lifeless body from that car, and another seven minutes of CPR to revive me. As my body bolted upright, I blurted "get my baby out of the car". Twenty two minutes had passed, the rescuers jumped back into the freezing bog to retrieve my son, knowing against hope, that he was dead. It took rescuers another five minutes or so to get my boy free from that car. His limp body was transported to the IWK Children's Hospital, where he was immediately hooked to every machine known to mankind.

The team of emergency doctors and neurologists were waiting for me. They assured me that my sweet little boy was indeed brain dead, and in addition to this, his internal organs were full of blood. He was hemorrhaging throughout his body and his organs were non-viable. Things were the most bleak I have ever known. That is when the voice came to me again. "Have faith child." The doctors advised me to unplug my baby and let him pass peacefully, for even if a miracle happened and he did live, he would be a vegetable. "No quality of life", is all I remember thinking. Once again I heard the voice, "have faith". For that moment the doctors agreed to keep Evan on life support, but advised me not to hold out any hope. He had less than one percent chance of living and then he would continue to be hooked to all these machines for the rest of his life. Remember, I had no God, so I could not even call for guidance. It was in the quiet of my first moment alone, that I was given the instructions. "Follow the instructions implicitly", memories of the visions and the voice in the lake flooded back to me. There was someone there with me, I was sure of it, and I decided to listen carefully. I was instructed to rebuild my son's aura by infusing his little body with the auras of others. Twenty minutes at a time was one of the first rules; for if it was longer, you would drain the aura of the giver. They instructed me to parade loving people through Evan's room, each depositing their own energy field into his lifeless body. They were to do this by connecting their flesh to his flesh and allowing their energy to run through his body, and then to give Evan their "gift." If they sang, they were to sing. If they were story tellers, tell a story, and so on. Infuse him with positive energy and your love and your talents, and this will revive him.

I proceeded against hospital protocol to send loving humans into my son's room every half hour. They then followed the instructions and gave their gift of love. This procession lasted twenty four hours a day, for three days. Dozens and dozens of people came. They "camped out" everyday and every night; loving trusting souls infusing his lifeless body with fresh energy. The fact that I was able to convince the hospital to allow this unorthodox behavior to happen was a miracle in itself, but on the third day, after 72 hours of constant vigil, my boy opened his little eyes and recognized me. He was back!!!

The doctors were baffled. They continued to tell me that he would never walk or talk or be a normal child again. However their words this time had no effect on me. The guidance and direction from my spiritual light beings had proved to me beyond a shadow of a doubt that he would be fine; after all, my "friend" in the lake had told me so.

Within the first week Evan had recovered all his body functions, and by the end of the second week, he was running down the halls to the hospital playroom. This was indeed an incredible miracle. What had I done to deserve such reprieve by our Almighty Creator? I didn't know nor did I care. I wanted to take my son home and be done with the whole nightmare. This is when I realized that I might be done with my light friends, but they were not done with me.

I continued to hear the voices and be directed with both visions and seeing auras. Needless to say, I was more than a little freaked out. As time passed I would ask "What do you want of me?" They would speak of the love for the universe and how things have gone terribly wrong. Humanity has spiraled out of control, and has lost its true connection to God and to this Earth. They want desperately for me to give the humans of this world a message from "beyond," that we have inside of us the power to unite this planet as one race with peace and prosperity for all. This power lies inside us all, and when combined with the loving energy of other humans, we can do for this planet what we did for my son. We can revive this Earth and catapult it into healing. With this healing will come a new phase of humanity. We will have a time of peace and harmony. All it will take is our intention, as a united group, and one hour of our time.

So as the voices and visions unraveled I was given the guidance of how to make this all happen. However it will take many of us on this planet to see to the success of the project. As they told me to rotate the humans through my son's room, they have told me to unite humanity from every corner of the globe. Not every human, just representatives from every corner. We can do this. We need to unite enough people to fire the divine energy system of this planet and jump start it like we did with my boy.

This global project of loving intention is completely possible. Your intention to make it happen can change the outcome of this planet. I will discuss the details of the plan in phase three of this website. I will give you the directions to follow, and you will see how little it will take for you to become an ambassador of light to our home, planet Earth. I beseech you to join me when we fire the Earth grid on July 17, 2007, and add your energy to this project. I promise you, just one hour of your time and you can help heal this planet, and help create peace among all people. My son and I are examples of the power of positive energy, and what humans are truly capable of when they unite with the intention of love. Love is the universal language of our world, and the world beyond.

This project is going to work. Remember this process brought back a dying boy, and I have been promised it will work on a global scale if we can find the humans to participate. In the Bible, it is said that they could not save Sodom and Gomorrah for want of ten good people. We are being offered the opportunity to save ourselves by offering only an hour of our lives. We can call out to the universe that Earth has good people here. We can show the Divine creator that there are enough of us here who truly want to evolve and become what we were intended to be.

I have been told that help is being sent to us. We can help create a miracle. My son is now running out in the yard, delighting in his life. A miracle saved him. This gift of Divine energy, and our willingness to help make it happen, will save us all. Please join us on July 17, 2007 at 11:11 Greenwich Mean time, to bring the power of God's love to us all. In choosing to participate you will be defining your intentions to the universe and you will also be defined as a human who desires positive change for this planet.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Please see John's comments below about this project, his contribution, and the person who replied to my email about it!

SONGS OF...

I am Music, most ancient of the arts. I am more than ancient; I am eternal. Even before life began upon this earth, I was here—in the winds and the waves. When the first trees and flowers and grasses appeared, I was among them. And when Man came, I at once became the most delicate, most subtle and most powerful medium for the expression of Man's emotions.

When men were little better than beasts, I influenced them for their good. In all ages I have inspired men with hope, kindled their love, given a voice to their joys, cheered them on to valorous deeds, and soothed them in times of despair. I have played a great part in the drama of life, whose end and purpose is the complete perfection of Man's nature. Through my influence, human nature has been uplifted, sweetened and refined. With the aid of men, I have become a Fine Art. I have a myriad of voices and instruments. I am in the hearts of all men and on their tongues, in all lands among all peoples; the ignorant and unlettered know me, not less than the rich and the learned. For I speak to all men, in a language that all understand. Even the deaf hear me, if they but listen to the voices of their own souls. I am the food of love. I have taught men gentleness and peace: and I have led them onward to heroic deeds. I comfort the lonely, and I harmonize the discord of crowds. I am a necessary luxury to all men. I am MUSIC.

What your fellow Earth friend describes as "firing the grid" is very much like what I set out to accomplish with my music—by inspiring people to reach out with the energy of love and positive visualizations every time they listen. This is the job I was given by our Creator—and which I accepted—during my time on earth as JD. I love the thought of everyone coming together on one day to really jack up the power! I would like to suggest some songs to play along during that time that have the highest healing vibrations: Healing Time on Earth (obviously), The Flower That Shattered the Stone, The Gift You Are, Amazon, African Sunrise, the Peace Poem (recite), and Earth Day Everyday. Of course there are many others but these are my favorites for this purpose. The others that bring to your mind all the sweet images from nature can be used in preparation to clear yourself of all the confusions of the world. And you can be assured that I will be with you all on that day of July 17th, 2007, participating and meeting with you in your meditations.

Peace!

Let this be a voice for the ocean...We must stop the slaughter of Humpback Whales!

"Have you heard the song the humpback hears 500 miles away? Telling tales of ancient history, of passages and home..."

Despite the moratorium on commercial whaling passed in 1982 by the International Whaling Commission, Japan has continued to kill whales, under the guise of "scientific research". Now Japan and Greenland have announced they will begin hunting Humpback Whales. Please visit <http://bluevoice.org/jcemail/whale-protest.html> to do your part today.

An important victory for whales! – From the Natural Resources Defense Council (NRDC):

July 11, 2006

Two weeks ago, NRDC attorneys raced to court to block the U.S. Navy from unleashing a barrage of ear-splitting sonar into the waters off Hawaii as part of a massive military training exercise. Whales exposed to mid-frequency sonar have repeatedly stranded and died on beaches around the world -- but the Navy refused to adopt even common-sense measures during peacetime exercises to help protect marine life from this deadly threat. In an infuriating attempt to avoid our lawsuit, the Navy took the unprecedented step -- on the eve of the Fourth of July weekend -- of declaring itself exempt from the primary U.S. law that requires measures to protect marine mammals. But the court sided with us and found that the Navy's planned sonar use violated a second key environmental law as well, noting that NRDC had submitted "considerable convincing scientific evidence" of the dangers of sonar to marine life.

The judge prohibited the Navy from going forward with its sonar use as planned and ordered the Navy to sit down with NRDC and decide on a set of protective measures to be put in place during the month-long exercise. In the settlement reached last Friday after days of tough negotiation with our attorneys, the Navy will be required to create a sonar-free buffer zone around the newly established Northwestern Hawaiian Islands Marine National Monument, as well as significantly improve its monitoring of marine mammals during sonar drills and implement other important safeguards.

This is an important victory, but much more needs to be done to protect whales and other marine life from high-intensity sonar, especially in biologically rich waters. As our campaign moves forward, we will continue to depend on your generous support and activism to compel the Navy to limit its use of harmful mid-frequency sonar. I hope you'll go to <https://www.savebiogems.org/whales/donate.asp> right now and make a contribution to support our ongoing legal efforts.

On behalf of our entire legal team, I want to thank you for coming to the defense of marine mammals around the world.

Sincerely,

Frances Beinecke, President
Natural Resources Defense Council

Freecycle

"This amazing worldwide phenomenon known as Freecycle(TM) started in Tucson, Arizona in 2003 by Deron Beal. Freecycle harnesses the power of the Internet to connect people who have stuff to throw away with others in their area who would like that stuff, so it doesn't wind up in a landfill. We ALL have things in our garages, closets, attics, offices, etc., that we don't need. Freecycle lets you find someone who does. No item is too big or too small but ALL must be 100% FREE with NO strings attached. A perfect consumer/ earth friendly circle is no overhead, no money, no waste and no catch. After all, there is no point in throwing something away when it still has good life in it or it can be of use to someone else. And you know what they say - The only difference between a yard sale and trash is proximity to the curb. So, get that good stuff off the curb and share it with your community instead!" <http://www.freecycle.com/>

There are also individual yahoo groups for specific locations. If you do a Freecycle search in Yahoo Groups, you'll get a list of what's available, or you could start one in your area!

An accidental celebrity - Suzuki didn't set out to be famous, he just wanted to explain science

By Jeffrey Simpson - <http://thechronicleherald.ca/NovaScotian/512410.html>

David Suzuki is a name that's synonymous with environmentalism in this country.

The 70-year-old scientist hadn't planned on becoming one of Canada's best-known activists when he started out several decades ago, but it's not a role he takes lightly. "I never set out to be a celebrity or leader of environmentalism," he says in a recent e-mail interview. "I thought my ability was translating arcane scientific information into lay language so that people could use that information and get involved.

"Instead, they have empowered me, which is exactly the opposite of what I set out to do. I take the responsibility very seriously. It is a heavy obligation to remain credible but focused."

He has now published the second installment of his autobiography, David Suzuki — The Autobiography. It describes the racism Suzuki experienced as a child — he and his family were put in an internment camp during the Second World War — and his teenage years in Ontario and his career as a geneticist. But it concentrates mostly on the last two decades, picking up where the first part of his autobiography, Metamorphosis, left off.

Suzuki says he has grown increasingly frustrated over the past 20 years with the lack of leadership from government in saving the planet. "I have become much more impatient with the lack of any sense of urgency on the part of our so-called leaders in politics," he says. "I see now that we have a fundamental flaw in the political system."

After faithfully voting in every federal election — never for the winning party — he advocates a system of proportional representation to ensure that politicians address minority views and concentrate on the electorate instead of their political careers. "Mr. Harper, for example, is thinking of only one thing — getting re-elected with a majority," Suzuki says. "But children don't vote. Future generations don't vote. So their best interests do not enter the political equation.

"For that matter, fish don't vote, or trees, insects, birds, oceans, atmosphere, etc. In other words, we look out at the world only through the narrow lens of our species' concerns. The minister of the environment's mandate is not protection of the interests of the environment, but the human beings who live in the environment."

He says science is the most powerful force shaping our lives today and it's largely ignored by political leaders. "Most politicians come from two areas, business and law, yet those are the people who have the least knowledge of science," he says.

"The most powerful forces shaping our lives and society today is science when applied by industry, medicine and the military. We cannot make informed decisions about issues like nanotechnology, peak oil, toxic pollution, HIV-AIDS, genetic engineering, cloning, stem cells, artificial intelligence, ethnic weapons, climate change, clearcut logging, etc. if we are not scientifically literate."

Over the years Suzuki has traveled the globe as he became a leading thinker on all things environmental. In his autobiography he shares stories of meeting international leaders as he has pursued his cause, people such as the Kaiapo Indians of the Amazon, Nelson Mandela and the Dalai Lama.

He says celebrities can be useful in attracting attention to certain environmental causes. But he warns against basing an entire campaign of awareness on a well-known actor or musician. "There are those, like Sting, John Denver, Gordon Lightfoot, Bruce Cockburn, Ed Begley Jr., and Daryl Hannah who have been involved for a long time and have great credibility," he says.

"Some, like Tom Cruise, may jump in but never have the credibility because they don't have a track record." Suzuki became known in living rooms across the country after becoming host of The Nature of Things, the CBC television show, in 1979.

And it's still on.

"New sexy flashy shows would be announced with great fanfare every year but we just kept on plugging away," he says. "It would be a tragedy if, after all this time, the show was finally cancelled. I believe it has been a vital conduit of information to the Canadian public for which there has never been a similar show in the U.S. And we are so much better off for it."

There's enough blame and excuses to go around when it comes to inaction on protecting our planet, he says. But, ultimately, it's up to every individual to take a leadership role instead of simply leaving it to figures like Suzuki himself.

"We have to act ourselves, doing things that reduce our impact on the environment," he says. "As Gandhi said, 'We have to be the change we want to see.'"

Invitation to join us

Our dear planet earth is dying!

At the rate we are clear cutting her forests, polluting her water and raping her natural resources we will be left with a barren wasteland for our home within 25 years!

Many of you ask what I can do about such a devastating plight. I have been given information about our planet which can help fire her bio-electrical nervous system and jump start her heart into healing and a new phase of restoration for the coming phase of humanity.

As we have inherited the earth from our parents we are stealing it from our children...so what can you do? You feel you are but one person but within you lies the miracle of rebirth for this planet, our home and future home to our children. Within us, the humans, lies the charge. When joined with other loving individuals, set with true intention of healing our planet, we can generate such a surge of energy into this planet that we will jolt Gaia into spontaneous regeneration. The miracle that we offer earth is our love.

So now you ask yourself why I would know of such a cure for this ailing life provider. Well I am a survivor of a near fatal car accident in which my son and I were submerged under water in our vehicle of 15 minutes and 30 minutes respectively. Just imagine, I was dead for 15 minutes, that's a long time for the other side to convince me of what is needed for this planet to regenerate. However the miracle is not only in my survival but in the fact that my son was declared brain dead and all his eternal organs had failed and were non-viable. My son was dead, not only in his brain but in his little body as well. To make a long story short, I was urged by doctors to disconnect his life support many times however I was directed from a stronger, loving power to stand my ground and fire his little body into healing. It worked!!!

What I did for a dying boy using a small group of people will work for our planet on a larger scale. We must fire earth's grid and rejuvenate her bio-electric matter. The intent of this letter is to entice you to view our website www.firethegrid.com and become an earth healer. We can jump start earth's heart and begin the healing of this planet, our home. We can do this if we unite! Please take the time to read my story and learn how you, as one single individual can unite with the rest of this planet for a mere hour of your time and catapult mother earth into a new phase of rejuvenation and healing. Only one hour I promise and you will become an ambassador of earth's health and well being!!!

If this letter and this site have touched your heart as I am sure it will. Please forward it to your loved ones so they too may join us when we fire the grid in 2007. Our mission is to reach as many people globally as possible. This task falls upon all of us who become aware of this project. Thank you for contributing to the largest grid project known to mankind. May light and love live within us all and peace be our soul's objective.

Shelley Yates
